My dear Wife

Your letter of the 13th I have just read. I am glad and very much relieved to learn that you have received our darling Vogs picture. I have waited long and patiently for an opportunity to send it to you safe. I was fearful of losing him my anxiety to get it to you. Take good care of it.

I judge by your letter that Lucie does not feel willing to accept the proffered hand of peace and friendship - I must say that I am sorry that such is the fact - but I cannot do any more - I never gave any cause for such feeling therefore I can afford to be magnanimous.

You enquire what kind of weather we are having here? I wrote to Helen yesterday that the weather was very fine &c, but that it might change before morning and be very cold and disagreeable. Well it has changed
